

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[00045] Apparatus and method are provided to enable cooling electronic components in computer systems using liquid metal as a coolant. The liquid metal coolant extracts heat generated by an electronic component and flows to a heat exchanger where the heat is rejected into ambient air through force convection. A pump is used to enable the liquid metal coolant to circulate in a closed loop system.